Introduction

This memorial brochure is designed as a guide to assist you in deciding on a suitable memorial to mark the resting place of someone who has passed away. The memorials listed in this brochure are a guide and can be personalised and altered in any way to suit your needs and requirements. We specialise in creating bespoke memorials and are at hand to assist in choosing the right memorial to commemorate a person who has died.

We can advise you on the many different materials, colours and designs available to create an individual memorial whilst keeping within the various churchyard or cemetery rules and regulations to ensure the memorial you chose will be authorised by the relevant governing authority.

Our memorial inscriptions can be traditionally hand cut or can be machine cut using most recognised computer font. Please ask our staff for more information on font styles available. The inscriptions can be painted black, silver, white or any colour within the churchyard/cemetery parameters or filled with gold leaf. Flush or raised led lettering is also available depending upon the material and colour chosen for the memorial.

Choosing an appropriate inscription for your memorial is an important decision as this will be a lasting tribute to the person who has died. For guidance and advice, speak to us and we will be happy to sit and discuss this with you.

Headstone Styles and Materials

Any of our memorials can be tailored to your individual requirements. All stone materials have different qualities and are suitable for different churchyards and cemeteries.

Granite is the most hard-wearing stone available and requires minimal maintenance as it is not a porous stone.

Nabresina, Portland and York stones, Dove Grey marble and Carrera (white) marble are all traditional materials. However, these materials are very porous and can be easily stained so require a fair level of maintenance. Nabresina, Portland and York are all sandstones and limestones and as such, are relatively soft and weather more than granite. Marble is a softer stone and therefore not as hard wearing as granite.

Below are some examples of materials and colours available. Samples are available and on display at our Potters Bar office.

Cemetery Traditional Memorials

The memorials in this section are only permitted in cemeteries or churchyards that allow a traditional kerbset style memorial to be erected to mark a grave space. The kerbset is usually made up of a headstone and 3 kerbs that outline the parameters of the grave. A flower vase can be incorporated into the memorial and the centre of the kerbset can either be filled with chippings, a cover slab to match the material of the kerbset or filled with soil.
